Projection screen and graphic panel

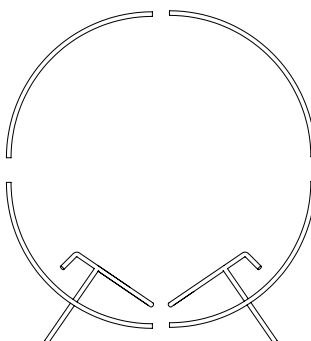

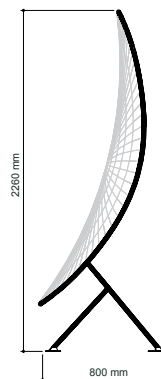

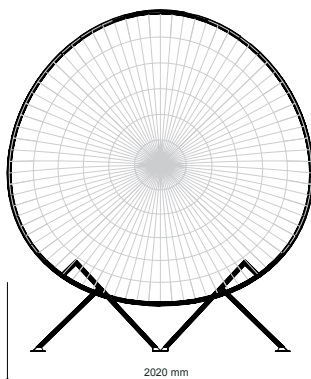

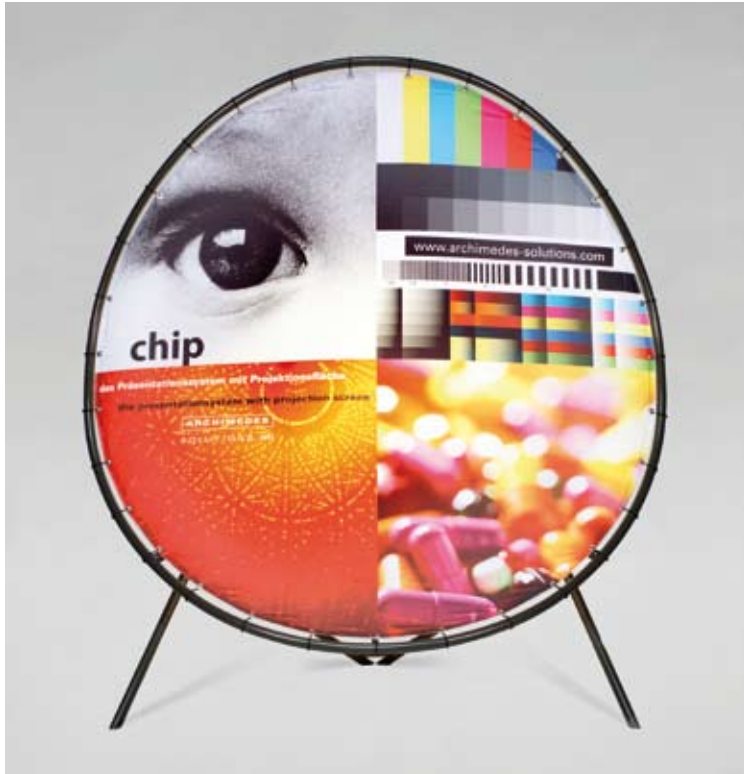

The exhibition element is made of a steel ring bent into a saddle-shape and covered with a membrane. This can then be printed with a graphic design. Due to its light conducting attributes, a small spot is sufficient to backlight the entire surface.

The specific properties of the membrane permit the exhibition element also to be used as a projection screen. Interesting combinations are thus possible: a moving picture on a recessed area can be integrated into an information panel with graphics.

The steel ring on which the membrane is secured can be dismantled into four segments. Ease of dismantling and light weight of the exhibition element (approx. 10 kg) make it suitable for a wide range of situations, e.g. particularly for road shows, shops in shops and promotions.
